WHEELING, DECEMBER 20, 1894.

The Republican Minority in Council. There is a question in the minds of some Republican members of council as to what they should do with regard to the next meeting of council, at which the election of a chief of the fire department comes up. Some incline to the view that they should stay away, break the quorum, so put off the election and hold it in abeyance until the new council comes in, when a Republican can be elected.

The Intelligencer hopes that this view may not prevail. It is opposed to the principle upon which popular government is founded, namely, the right of a lawfully ascertained majority to govern in lawful ways. It proposes that Republicans in the city council of Wheeling shall do that which Democrats in the Fifty-first Congress were denounced for doing in the house of representatives, break the quorum to take from the majority its right to do busi-The present council is Democratic.

The people made it so, as it was their right to do. The election of a chief of the fire department is one of the duties which this council was chosen to pertorm. It is the duty of members without regard to politics and without regard to the result of that election to be present to discharge that duty, allowing the election to be determined by the majority of the votes.

If Republicans were to stay away and break the quorum in the hope of throwing to a Republican council that which properly belongs to the present Democratic council, the public would regard that as the small trickery of small politics, and there would be no good answer to that just criticism. The criticism might even find its way into the ballot box and upset the confident hopes of a Republican council.

Let the Republicans in council stand up like men and do right as a minority. Then the people may be glad of an opportunity to trust them to do right as a majority. The quorum-breaking project is wrong in principle and dangerous as a matter of policy. It might easily defeat the Republican city ticket all along the line.

WHEELING is interested in the project to open a waterway between Lake Erie and the Ohio river and hopes to see the good scheme materialize.

Republican Tariff Doctrine.

An exchange remarks that "McKinlevism is not a Republican doctrine and never was." Certainly not. If we understand what is meant by "McKinleyism" it is the schedules of tariff rates adopted on the recommendation of a ways and means committee of which Major McKinley was chairman.

"McKinleyism," then is a tariff bill and not a doctrine. It was a good tariff bill based on the principle of protection. Protection is a Republican doctrine and will continue to be. This is one reason. why the country has left the Democratic party and come back to the Republican party.

The next tariff bill framed by the Republican party will be based on the same wholesome principle, but in its schedules it is likety to differ greatly from the McKinley act, for it will be prepared to meet new and different conditions.

THERE is one good thing about the Christmas stocking, it has to be darned before it is hung up. This encourages industry and neatness, two virtues of great beauty.

Secretary Carlisle's Discrimination. The Carlisle bill makes an unaccountable and unjustifiable discrimination in favor of state banks as against national banks. National banks are to be made to pay ½ per cent a year to accumulate a safety fund for the redemption of their notes, and any deficit in the case of failed banks is to be made up by the other banks in the system. Neither the safety fund charge nor the assessment feature is to fall on the state banks. If the secretary of the treasury has in mind any good reason for making fish of one and flesh of the other he has not thought it well to take the public into his confidence. The scems to have been to draw to the bill the support of the advocates of a state bank currency.

"The Federal Income Tax Explained" is a small volume published by Mesars. Little, Brown & Co., of Boston, which aill be found valuable in view of the fact that the income tax law is about to go into effect. The subject is well treated in brief. There is a very full index and a table of cases cited. The little book answers most, if not all, of the questions likely to come up under this law which has already raised so many questions.

WHEELING's shop windows were never so inviting as they are in this holiday season. Some of them are real pictures.

Admiral Walker on Hawaii. Admiral Walker in his report to the navy department goes as far as he can to criticise the action of this government in withdrawing all naval representation from Hawaii. If he had had any discretion in the matter, he says, he would have come home as he was ordered to do, but would have left his ship there. But he had no discretion, the order was peremptory, and he was obliged to bring the ship home.

The admiral calls attention to the British policy, which is to keep a ship of war in Hawaiian waters for the effect it may have on the native mind and to take advantage of any development favorable to British supremacy. No wonder the administration did not wish to give this report to the country and waited until it was demanded by the senate. It reveals once more a state of affairs not creditable to the administration's diplomacy.

It looks as though there has been s desire on the part of the administration to make the way easy for the British lion to lay his paws on the little coun try in the Pacific.

Ir Christmas came every day in the year the youngsters would not object. Christmas is their time above all others.

A Remarkable Case.

The case of Juror Goff is altogether remarkable. Certainly there has never been anything like it in this state. When Mr. Loftus, of the railroad company, says that the juror came to him and solicited a bribe, there is no reason to doubt him. He is a man of character and had no reason whatever to concoct

On the other hand it is inconceivable that any man in his senses could hope to escape exposure after making such a proposition as Mr. Loftus swears that this juror made. Stranger still, if the lawyers who have discussed the case be well advised, the solicitation of a bribe by a juror is not a felony, and there is no way to reach the offender except under the court's authority to punish for contempt.

If this be true a way should be made, and that speedily. There can hardly be a graver offense than for a juror to solicit a bribe to determine his verdict. Perhaps the reason why this has not been done before is because the offense is so uncommon.

THE more it is thought over the less the house seems to take to the banking bill. The fact is, the house does not quite understand the measure and would like more light before it has to act. Even the leaders would be glad if somebody would rise up to lead them.

SECRETARY CARLISLE should be proud to know that while the country is not with him in the matter of his bank scheme. Coxey is giving it his able and undivided support. Doesn't Coxey know what is good for the country?

THE supreme court of Colorado holds to be unconstitutional and void the law prohibiting insurance companies to take risks on the lives of children under ten years of age. If graveyard insurance be lawful in Colorado it is fortunate that murder is not.

INDICIMENTS against Captain Howgate are piling up. Still there is an impression that he will never be tried because some persons armed with a "pull" have their own reasons for not wishing him to be tried.

From present indications it is probable that when certain of the Chinese generals wake up on Christmas morning they will find their heads in their stockings.

STOPPING A PAPER. An Anecdote of Horace Greeley Which Has a Moral.

A story told of Horace Greeley relates that an acquaintance of his got offended at one of his articles in the Tribune, went to the office and put an end to his subscription. Later in the day he met the editor and said: "Mr. Greeley, I've stopped your paper." "Have you?" queried Horace, adding, "Well, that's too bad, and the old white hat went its way. The next morning Greeley encountered his former subscriber again countered his former subscriber again and accosted him with: "I thought you had stopped the Tribune?" "So I did." "Then there must be some mistake," replied Horace, "for I just came from the office and when I left the presses were ruuning as usual, the clerks were as busy as ever, the compositors were bard at work and the business was going bard at work and the business was going on the same as resterday and the day before." "Oh!" ejaculated the old subscriber, "I didn't mean that I had stopped the paper. I stopped only my copy of it because I didn't like one of your editorials." "Pshaw!" retorted Greeley, "it wasn't worth taking up my time to tell me such a trifle as that. My dear sir, if you expect to control the utterance of the Tribune by the purchase of one copy a day, or if you think to find any newspaper worth think to find any newspaper worth reading that will never express convic-tions at right angle with your own, you are doomed to disappointment. The Tribune would not be deserving of

Ex-Consul Peterson in His Element, respect if it could be coerced by the threat of the loss of one subscriber, or a hundred, or ten thousand, or every one it has, to refrain from telling the truth as it sees it. My friend, this is a free country, and the man who does not give freedom of opinion to others does not deserve it himself. Good-by."

The Herald announces with pleasure that Major James J. Peterson, late con-sul to Tegucigalpa, Honduras, has re-entered the newspaper business in Huntington. In fact he has become the business manager of the Herald, the proprietors of which let no chance es-cape to give the people of Huntington and surrounding country the best and brightest newspaper over published in the city. Major Peterson's facile pen will not be missed from the columns of the Herald, as our readers will discover as soon as he gets properly into harness again. Major Peterson, as a newspaper mau, needs no introduction in Huni-ington or West Virginia, and the news-paper men of the state will rejoice with the Herald that it has been fortunate enough to secure his services.

An Ex- Varsity Captain speaks on Foot-

Harper's Young People. Of course there are hard plays in the game. We all know that and expect it, and we all take our knocks manfully as may be. These hard attacks come to you whenever you try to stop an inter-ference are part of the game. It is impossible for you to realize how much evil influence you may exert, any one of you, if you resort to such ugly meth-ods of play as falling or jumping on men when they are down, or striking a man when you go through the line for no other reason than to injure him, or kicking when you are in a crowd your feet are doing to those who cannot get up and out of the way. The influ-ence of one man who does this is very great over his whole team. They see him adopting such policy. They are ex-cited over the game, and they follow his example, unless they are very strong characters. That at once reacts on the opposing eleven. These men suddenly find that their opponents are resorting to this wretched method of winning a game, and they in natural self-defence fall into the same ugly ways. What is the result? Nothing more nor less the result? Nothing more nor less than a big prize-fight.

I knew a man once—and knew him pretty well, too, since he has many a time thrown me on an athletic field—who would tackle his man with such fierčeness and quickness, that the latter could not hope to do anything more for that play. Yet several times, when he threw me so that I thought my head was snapped off or my teeth all knocked out, I have known that man to arch his back, and thus protect me from the weight of the other players who fell weight of the other players who fell upon us the next instant.

Then I have known another man who, when another of his team had tackled and thrown a player of our side, would come rushing at him as he lay helpless on the ground, and fall on him with his on the ground, and fall on him with his knees in his back or chest. There you have the two kinds of men. The gen-tleman will be a gentleman at the bot-tom of a pile of foot ball players as he will anywhere else. The brute will be an anima! anywhere. Therefore be a cantieman. gentleman.

WHEAT AS FEED

For Farm Animals—Secretary Morton on the Subject

Washington, Dec. 19 .- The feeding of wheat to animals has become so general throughout this country that requests are now constantly received at the agricultural department for information as to the best methods of feeding that grain to cattle, hogs and other animals, In discussing the subject in an interview to-day, Secretary Morton said.

"Wheat value, as an animal food, is great. But the wheat must be used carefully and with due regard to the habits and environment of the animals, habits and environment of the animals, and the forage feed accompanying it. Growing and fattening animals are found to thrive upon it.

"The profit in feeding wheat, when that cereal and corn are at the same prices, is greater than in feeding the latter. Wheat weight 7 per cent heavier than corn. Wheat is, weight for weight, equally good for fattening animals and better for growing animals. "The feeding should be begun by giving very small quantities to the animal. It should be mixed with chopped hay or with other grain. The department or with other grain. The department will furnish leaflets upon the subject to all country newspapers. The prospect is that the Argentine wheat crop, which is harvested this month, will not be as satisfactory as it was last year, nor their wheat as merchantable."

A False Report Concerning the Use of Anti-Toxine-What the Doctor Says.

New York, Dec. 19.-There have been rumors current in Yonkers for several days to the effect that a patient treated with anti-toxine serum had been poisoned by it to such an extent that his body had broken out in sores. The patient was Alexander Laird, of Yonkers. He had lost his three children from diphtheria within three days and ten days ago he was taken sick with the disease.

Dr. J. Lindsey Porteous suggested the use of anti-toxine, and secured some of the serum from this city. Mr. and Mrs. Laird were both inoculated with it. In the case of Mr. Laird the result was ben-eficial at once. Mrs. Laird, although constantly exposed to the disease, has not contracted it. The administration of the serum results in the breaking out of a rash, which, to an unprofessional eye, appears like chicken pox. This is eye, appears the chicked pox. The assecompanied by an itching which is annoying to the patient. Dr. Porteous said last evening there was nothing to be feared that the remedy had worked with perfect success so far as he could see. Other doctors agree in this state-
